

The Australian Army and the national system of Vocational Education & Training (VET) – an historical review of collaboration

Dr Carolyn Johnstone

The screenshot shows the top navigation bar of the Australian Army website with the 'Army' logo and menu items: 'Who we are', 'Our work', 'Our history', and 'Our future'. Below the navigation bar, the breadcrumb trail reads: 'Home > Our history > Australian Army History Unit > Army History Research Grants'. The main heading is 'Army History Research Grants'. On the left, there is a sidebar menu with items: 'Our history', 'Australian Army History Unit', 'Our business', 'Chief of Army History Conference', 'Army History Research Grants' (highlighted in red), 'Previous recipients', 'C. E. W. Bean Prize', 'Frequently asked questions', 'Primary materials', 'Battle Honours', and 'How to research family history'. The main content area features a black and white photograph of soldiers in a trench. Below the photo, the text reads: 'Congratulations to the successful applicants who were awarded Army History Research Grants for Financial Year 2014-15. We look forward to seeing the projects that result from your research.'
